Taxi Lost and Found. Op-Docs. By CASEY NEISTAT JULY 25, 2012. If I came across someone's lost property, the opportunity to do the right thing would motivate me more than a reward or a threat. Why not offer others the same opportunity? A few weeks ago, I capped a long day of travel by leaving my luggage, which contained video equipment worth more than $13,000, in the back of a taxi. Calls to 311 and the taxi driver's garage yielded nothing. I tried the New York City Taxi and Limousine Commission . I also tried the N.Y.P.D. , which said a police precinct "makes all attempts to identify and locate the owner" if any lost property turns up. Since my bags were... No matter what the subject.
