

Some Reflections on Manuel Castells' Book "Networks of Outrage and Hope. Social Movements in the Internet Age".

Christian Fuchs

Uppsala University, Department of Informatics and Media

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.31269/triplec.v10i2.459>

Keywords: social movements, social media, Internet, protest, revolution, occupation, Arab spring, 15-M, indignadas, indignados, Occupy Wall Street, Manuel Castells, network, Networks of outrage and hope. Social movements in the Internet age.

Abstract

This paper provides critical reflections on Manuel Castells' (2012) book Networks of Outrage and Hope. Social Movements in the Internet Age that analyses the "nature and perspectives of networked social movements" (p. 4) and gives special focus to the role of "social media" in movements that emerged in 2011 in Tunisia, Iceland, Egypt, Spain and the United States. I situate Castells' book in an intellectual discourse that focuses on the political implications of social media and that has involved Clay Shirky, Malcolm Gladwell and Evgeny Morozov. The article also discusses the role of social theory and empirical research in Castells' book, presents as an alternative a theoretical model of the relationship between social movements and the media, discusses the implications that some empirical data that focus on social media in the Egyptian revolution and the Occupy Wall Street movement have for Castells' approach, discusses how Castells positions himself towards capitalism and compares his explanation of the crisis and his political views to David Harvey's approach.

Section overview:

1. Introduction
2. Social Media and Politics: A Controversy between Clay Shirky, Malcolm Gladwell and Evgeny Morozov
3. Castells on Social Media in the Context of Protests and Revolutions: The Dimension of Social Theory
4. Social Theory Recovered: A Model of the Relationship between Social Movements and the Media
5. Castells on Social Media in the Context of Protests and Revolutions: The Dimension of Empirical Research
6. Manuel Castells and David Harvey: The Question of Political Struggle - For or against Capitalism?
7. Conclusion

Author Biography

Christian Fuchs, Uppsala University, Department of Informatics and Media

Christian Fuchs is professor and chair in media and communication studies at Uppsala University's Department of Informatics and Media. He is board member of the Unified Theory of Information Research Group and editor of tripleC (cognition, communication, co-operation): Journal for a Global Sustainable Information Society. He holds a venia docendi in the field of ICTs and society.

His research interests are: critical theory, social theory, media and society, ICTs and society, information society theory/research, political economy. He is author of many publications in these fields, including the books 'Internet and Society: Social Theory in the Information Age' (Routledge 2008), which presents a social theory of contemporary society with a special consideration of media, information, and technology, and the book 'Foundations of Critical Media and Information Studies' (Routledge 2011), which is an introduction to the theoretical and methodological foundations of critical media studies and critical information science.

He is co-ordinator of the research project 'Social Networking Sites in the Surveillance Society' (funded by the Austrian Science Fund FWF), co-ordinator of Uppsala University's involvement in the 2 EU FP7 projects PACT and RESPECT, and management committee member of the EU COST Action 'Living in Surveillance Societies'.

URL: <http://fuchs.uti.at>

 PDF

Published

2012-12-09

Issue

Vol 10 No 2 \(2012\)

Section

Reflections (Non Peer-Reviewed)

tripleC is a peer-reviewed, open-access journal (ISSN: 1726-670X). All journal content, except where otherwise noted, is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs 3.0 Austria License.

ISSN 1726-670X

Privacy policy

Other policies

Platform & workflow by
OJS / PKP

His latest book, Networks of Outrage and Hope: Social Movements in the Internet Age (2012) turns his framework on the Arab Uprisings, Indignadas, and the Occupy Movement. In his talk he will extend this framework to include recent events in Brazil and Turkey as well as his reflections on what lies beyond. Manuel Castells is the Wallis Annenberg Chair of Communication Technology and Society, University of Southern California; Professor Emeritus of City and Regional Planning and of Sociology, University of California, Berkeley; and Director of Research, Department of Sociology, University of Cam [PDF] Networks Of Outrage And Hope Social Movements In The Internet Age Manuel Castells PDF Book is the book you are looking for, by download PDF Networks Of Outrage And Hope Social Movements In The Internet Age Manuel Castells book you are also motivated to search from other sources. [Networks Of Outrage And Hope: Social Movements In The Networks Of Outrage And Hope: Social Movements In The Internet Age \[Manuel Castells\] On Amazon.com](#). FREE Shipping On Qualifying Offers. Larry Elder Calls Them Like He Sees Them. And In This Collection Of Some Of His Best Columns, He Wields His Pen Against Anyone Who Doesn't. Welfare Jan 29th, 2019. TED2018: The Age Of Amazement | April 10-14, 2018 This paper provides critical reflections on Manuel Castells' (2012) book Networks of Outrage and Hope. Social Movements in the Internet Age that analyses the "nature and perspectives of networked social movements" (p. 4) and gives special focus to the role of "social media" in movements that emerged in 2011 in Tunisia, Iceland, Egypt, Spain and the United States. I situate Castells' book in an intellectual discourse that focuses on the political implications of social media and that has involved Clay Shirky, Malcolm Gladwell and Evgeny Morozov. The article also discusses the role of social the