"The bulk of the monograph focuses on the Afrikaner right, and in sections of the monograph 'white right' and 'Afrikaner right' are used interchangeably. Adam and Moodley point out that the extreme white right is but a small component of the broad white right in South Africa. The aim of the monograph is to focus on the white right's threat to security and stability in South Africa. This came about as a result of extensive enquiries about the extreme white right in the aftermath of a number of bombings committed by a previously unknown right wing organisation in late 2002. The monograph should not be seen as a definitive analysis of Afrikaner nationalism and ethnicity."

Christian Identity asserts that the white people of Europe or Caucasians in general are God's servant people, according to the promises that were given to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. It further asserts that the early European tribes were really the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel and therefore the rightful heirs to God's promises, and God's chosen people.
